A Very Special Friend

Mary Ann got on her brand new bike. She put a foot on one pedal, then one on the other. The bike teetered back and forth and toppled over. Mary Ann sat on the ground crying. She was sad and blue and had some bumps and bruises, too. "It's been a week since I got my new bike," she moaned. "And I still can't ride it! I don't know why I wanted this dumb old bike anyway!" she cried.

Mary Ann went inside. "I can't ride that bike! I can't!" she said as she climbed the stairs to her room. She put on her pajamas and climbed in bed. Hugging her Rainbow Brite doll in her arms, she fell into a troubled sleep.

Rainbow Brite just hated seeing Mary Ann so unhappy. She wriggled out of her arms and climbed up on her pillow. She whispered in the little girl's ear and Mary Ann began to dream. "Where am I?" Mary Ann asked rubbing her eyes.

"In Rainbow Land, of course!" Rainbow Brite smiled. "Just look around you."

Mary Ann couldn't believe her eyes! "It's so beautiful!" she sighed. "But how did I get here?"

"Oh, that doesn't matter," said Rainbow Brite. "What's important is that you are. Come on, I want you to meet someone." Rainbow Brite led Mary Ann down a colorful trail. A beautiful horse came up and greeted them. "This is Starlite."
